Rural Oxford EDC hands out local business awards

By Lee Griffi, Local Journalism Initiative reporter

A total of 11 outstanding Oxford County businesses were honoured last week as the Rural Oxford Economic Development Corporation (ROEDC) held its 10th anniversary award event at the Otter Creek Golf Club.

Three area operations took home awards including Quehl's Family Restaurant and owners Cindy and Brian Larsen, who were honoured with a Lifetime Achievement Award. The pair have owned the restaurant for 32 of its 90-plus years and said they had no idea the award was coming but added it was a pleasant surprise.

"I feel very blessed, especially in this area. When you look at the restaurant starting in 1931 and all the external events that have occurred since then like the war, the Great Depression and then COVID, the community is really something," said Cindy Larsen.

She added there are many factors leading to the restaurant's success including regular customers and location.

"Word of mouth is important and I feel we are in the middle of everything; London, Toronto, close to Stratford and close to Woodstock."

While the Larsen and Quehl's names are on the award, Cindy Larsen said it is a shared honour.

"Quehl's wouldn't be here, whether it's us or someone else owning this place, it would not be here if it wasn't for the community. We like to have new people coming in, but it is our customers that keep it alive. We see new generations of families coming in and the recipes have been handed down over so many years."

Local swimmer medals at Special Olympics pool events in New Hamburg

By Lee Griffi, Local Journalism Initiative reporter

Stratford swimmer Amiera Black was excited to compete in the South-Central District's Special Olympics last week. Not only did she compete, but she also won. Lots.

Black is a member of the Wilmot Aquatic ACES Swim Club and was participating in her first Special Olympics where she hit the pool in four events. She brought home three gold medals and one silver. Despite bringing home a barrage of hardware, Amiera said for her it was about the fun.

"It was amazing. I met lots of new friends and I swam really well," she told the Gazette.

The competition wasn't the only part of the event as Amiera played a big part in the opening and closing ceremonies. There was also a dance for competitors when the event wrapped up.

"She was up at 5 a.m. that morning, so it was a very long and busy day. They were all extremely tired, but they loved it when the music started. I think about an hour into the dance everyone said let's go home," laughed Jennifer Black, Ameira's mom.

Amiera was also excited to have swimmers from across the region compete in her home pool, and while the competition was about making friends and having fun, she said winning did feel good.

"I love the medals," said Amiera.

"They were pretty heavy around her neck," added Jennifer Black.

Not only did she win three golds and a silver, but she was able to perform with personal-best times in all four races including the 800-metre freestyle.

ROEDC honours local businesses with awards

Bright Cheese and Butter also received the second of four Lifetime Achievement Awards handed out. General manager Stefan Cartmale has been at the helm for just over a decade and said, on a personal level, the award means a lot to his team.

"It is recognition of the long-term perseverance of a business that has spent decades bucking the trends of making food less expensive and less nutritious by providing high-quality products at reasonable prices. The cheese industry is a tough business with very low margins and very high competition not only from Canada but now from all over the world."

He added his team constantly looks for innovation without sacrificing quality or food safety and continues to develop products that are inclusive of diverse dietary requirements.

"It is an honour to work for a business that is so highly recognized locally and refuses to bend from its core values even though so many of our local Ontario competitors have closed their doors against the pressures of competing against imports and highly modified food ingredients."

Anyone involved in small business in Oxford County knows there is a one-of-a-kind comradery. Cartmale explained the more he becomes involved in the community in Oxford County, the more impressed he is with how well the community supports each other.

"There are several events and initiatives led by organizations like ROEDC and having the ability to easily network with other local businesses is invaluable. It is truly amazing when you realize just how diverse the manufacturing base and business community in Oxford is. You could decide tomorrow to open a company and you'd be surprised to find that almost everything you need is within 30 minutes."

He added at last week's award ceremony, the sense of appreciation everyone had for one another was on complete display.

"Businesses are truly supportive of one another and I was personally so happy for every one of the award recipients. It was a remarkable event."

Terra Nova Spa in Hickson received the ROEDC's Starter Company Award, something owner Jodi Pendry said came out of the success the business had since opening in 2022.

"I think they were so impressed that when we started it just took off running and kept evolving."

Thanks to exceptional growth last year, the business employs 30 people and has increased revenue by 100 per cent.

"We are really working hard to create a collaborative team and it was fun for me when I came to work and said look what we won. My staff said congratulations, you won another award. I said, 'I didn't. We did.' I can't do this on my own."

She added everyone at Terra Nova works hard to create the ultimate guest experience.

"If we didn't do that, then we never would have been nominated," added Pendry.

Among the dignitaries on hand was Oxford MPP Ernie Hardeman who said having so many incredible small businesses in the same place at once is what makes Oxford County an incredible place to do business.

"When I look at the places across the country I get involved with in my job, I've never thought of any area better than Oxford and tonight proves that."

Many of the award nominees and winners are part of agri-tourism, a growing part of the county's economy. Hardeman said the sector is expanding more rapidly here than anywhere else.

"It's all part of how we have changed and grown economically. When I first started in politics no one even talked about tourism let alone try and develop it in our rural area. The way agriculture is changing, we have to make special efforts to protect our culture by encouraging people to go for awards like tonight."

He added when agriculture is discussed, the conversation is normally about increasing yields, farming more efficiently and being more competitive globally, something that wasn't the case at the awards banquet.

"When you look at tonight's awards, they were almost all directed at how we are building the agricultural community, not how much more efficiently we are fixing our food. This is about how we can protect our rural communities."

The other award winners were:

- Oxford Fresh Farm Gate – Berrylicious Fruit Farm

"She swam that race a month ago and took off 51 seconds, and last weekend she won gold in 11 seconds less than that. Those are big chunks of time to take off," added Jennnifer Black, who was allowed to be one of her daughter's coaches at the competition.

"Her sister, father and grandparents all came to watch. Even her old coach when she was four came from Goderich to watch. It was really cool to have everyone in the stands there cheering her on," she added.

Amiera also stayed at the athlete's village at Laurier University with a roommate, something that was a first for her.

"It was funny at nighttime. She made me laugh all night," she said.

The 18-year-old swimmer may or may not be moving on to the 2026 National Summer Games in Medicine Hat, Alta. Jennifer Black said there are several factors in making that decision.

"That's our hope but we don't know for sure. Special Olympics does things a little differently. It's not just by times, it's by community and coaching endorsement. I don't completely understand how they choose but we are in a waiting game now to see if she carries on."

The event was special for everyone involved, be it the athletes and their families, coaches, volunteers, or organizers. Jennifer Black said the opening ceremonies were her highlight.

"We participated in the flag-bearing ritual. Just having that many athletes with different challenges be welcomed into the community with open arms. The excitement and support was incredible. At any Special Olympics event, it doesn't matter what level, they always remind me of what's really important. It doesn't matter if they win, they are so excited to be there. They cheer for their friends, they cheer for people they don't even know."

She added the athletes are there to just enjoy what they are doing at the moment and, in turn, everyone around them is supporting the community as a whole. The event sponsors, the Waterloo Regional Police get top marks for their involvement.

"It was overwhelming how many people were there to cheer the athletes on. We were emotionally moved by the whole experience at every level. The Waterloo Regional Police were phenomenal. They were amazing with the athletes and wanted them to feel comfortable. Amiera even got to sit on one of their motorcycles. It was so uplifting," said Jennifer Black.

Over 750 athletes from across Ontario came to the Waterloo Region to compete in five diverse and exciting sports during the event - basketball, powerlifting, rhythmic gymnastics, swimming and 10-pin bowling.

Grapes, goats and good times at Perth Farmhouse Winery

By Lisa Chester

Perth County's first winery has opened its doors to wine and cider enthusiasts' delight.

The Perth Farmhouse Winery, located a short, 20-minute drive from Stratford, is the perfect outing on a sunny afternoon to discover new wines in a family friendly setting with, who would guess, goats.

The 1860's farmhouse property is owned by Steve and Casey Howanyk who describe themselves as first-generation farmers. Their vision of the vineyard evolved over time as they learned how they loved to live there. Sharing the property with family and friends was a joy and they found they wanted to share even further.

"We moved here in 2018 with zero clue about farming. We just loved the property and the house and when it happened to have barns on site, I saw cute, baby goats on Instagram and the rest is history. Our friends and family really enjoyed coming here and we thought we really wanted to share with others that genuine farm hospitality," said Casey Howanyk, owner.

They launched their goat social signature experience and planted a test acre of grapes in 2022, and then they started on the winery. They took their 100-year-old timber barn and transformed it into a warm and welcoming tasting room with an adjacent patio. There are picnic tables beside the pasture where the goats are.

"We switched our five-acre hay field to a five-acre vineyard of cold-climate grapes. We have five varietals. We have Vidal, Petite Pearl, Ithasca, Frontenac Blanc and Marquette, so all of the wines that we have made on site have our blend and they all include those cold-climate grapes," said Casey Howanyk

Because they are expecting their first full harvest of their own grapes this year, they also use grape growers in Huron County and Niagara to supplement in the making of wines and ciders. The Sip and Graze experience, just launched, allows guests to sample flights of four different wines and ciders on offer.

"It's an hour-and-a-half-long experience where you get to taste some of our wine or ciders, and you get a grazing box which is curated by our neighbours at Lynn River Farms. It's all fresh from-the-farm ingredients, then at the end of your visit our goat nanny takes you in to visit the goats and take pictures," she said.

The grape-growing experience has been extraordinary. Their expert winemaker, Steve Byfield, comes with a wealth of experience and knowledge while the Howanyks bring a hard-work ethic and good humour.

"That first, one-acre test plot was planted on a few weekends with our friends and families and our kids, and it was a memory we will never forget. We're learning how to prune them and what to look for and how to train them up the trellis, and things like when to harvest them, even to weed control. We got some cool, new tools because we don't use pesticides.

"There's a preconceived notion that we can't grow grapes here in Perth County, but I think we've proven everyone wrong," laughed Howanyk.

The grape varietals differ from others grown in vineyard hotbeds like Niagara-on-the-Lake, with the obvious exclusion of Chardonnay. Prince Edward County is another example of where cold-climate grapes are grown.

"We have to give all the credit to our winemaker, Steve Byfield. He makes such smooth, fresh wines and ciders. We've had great feedback on everything including those that are not usually a rosé drinker, but love the rosé and leave buying two bottles to take home. I think it's nice for folks in the area not to have to drive far away to Niagara-on-the-Lake and Prince Edward County for a wine-tasting experience," said Casey Howanyk.

This family friendly experience is open Saturdays and Sundays. There are juice flights for the younger crowd and non-alcoholic mimosas for the pregnant visitors to leave no one out. Reservations are recommended and can be made on their website at theperrthfarmhouse.ca or by calling 519-807-3774. The Perth Farmhouse is located at 4596 Wilmot Easthope Rd. in New Hamburg.

Record-high registrations for Saturday's World Crokinole Championship in Tavistock

By Stewart Grant

"It's the most ever by a long shot," says Nathan Walsh of the World Crokinole Championship (WCC) organizing committee regarding this year's registration figures.

"We were selling out the singles category by the start of April."

The WCC committee will have a record 140 boards in play during singles competition this Saturday, up from last year's high of 133 boards.

"Crokinole is continuing to reach new people," Walsh told the Gazette.

Walsh said people like Jeremy Tracey are doing a lot to grow the game in the United States. Tracey's company, Tracey Boards, sells hand-crafted crokinole boards which are sold at shows throughout North America and the company's YouTube channel is growing all the time, now with nearly 4,000 subscribers.

Though the majority of players in the World Crokinole Championship come from the home of crokinole here in southwestern Ontario, some participants are making a long trek to get here. Canadian players will be here "from coast to coast" with provinces such as British Columbia, Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia and Quebec all represented. There are players signed up from 15 different American states including Alaska, California and Washington. There's even a player who is flying in from Japan to compete in the Worlds.

Last year's champion, Connor Reinman of Grosse Pointe, Mich., will be returning to defend the title he won in 2023. Walsh says nearly all of crokinole's top players will be there hoping to win it all in Tavistock.

The World Crokinole Championships take place this Saturday, June 1 at Tavistock Arena. Registration for the Doubles categories (competitive, recreational, cue and youth) opens at 7:15 a.m. with play commencing around 8 a.m. For those interested in catching the finals (admission to watch is free), the Doubles Championship round takes place around 12:45 p.m.

Playing in the Singles categories begins at 1:45 p.m. with the World Championship title ultimately decided around 7-8 p.m.

For more information on this Saturday's event, visit www.worldcrokinole.com.

Remembering the oldest members of Perth County's-North Easthope Antique Tractor Club (NEAT)

Close to 50 antique tractor club members and their machines took up an invite for breakfast at the famous Quehl's Family Restaurant in Tavistock last week. As usual, many of the retired farmers enjoyed visiting under blue skies and bright sunshine once their tractors were parked to discuss the state of the local farming community and, of course, the weather. Pictured are the most senior members of the North Easthope Antique Tractor club. From left are Marvin Musselman from New Dundee, Paul Yantzi from Punkey Doodles Corners, Floyd Neeb from North Easthope Township, and Raymond Ruby from Tavistock. Photos by Gary West

Ken Dechert left his antique tractor in the shed and showed off his fully electric mobility scooter at the rear parking lot of Quehl's. He says he can drive on roads around the county of speeds up to 40 km/hr and doesn't have to worry about stopping for gas or changing oil, or even having a driver's licence. His new mode of transportation was purchased at Wagler Small Engines in Millbank.

Shakespeare hosts annual village garage sale, with visitors from miles away

Even though the day started out wet and rainy, later on the rain stopped and the sun came out and Shakespeare was abuzz with the different households taking part in the annual village garage sale. The day even drew some Mennonite visitors from as far away as Kingwood, north of Shakespeare. Pictured is the wagon and team of horses hitched up behind the Shakespeare fire station. Owners of the Bauman and Martin families had made their rounds to observe and purchase some items for sale at various garages. Before heading for home, they stopped in for sausage on a bun cooked up by members of the local fire department. Photo by Gary West

New historical storyboard plaque commemorates life cut short, town history

By Hannah Kavanagh

The rain cleared for a sunny day, perfect for the just over 20-person turnout at the corner of Lichty Road and Schummer Line for Thomas Huber's commemorative storyboard plaque.

On May 25, Wellesley Township Heritage and Historical Society held the ceremony to unveil the plaque of the blacksmith and wagon maker from the 1900s. Huber had announced the opening of a new cider mill set for Sept. 15, 1908, but on Sept. 14, the boiler exploded, killing Huber and his business partner, William Attig.

The chairman of the Society, Andrew Jacobson, was there to give a brief history of why the site was being commemorated and then turned it over to the man they have to thank for the extensive research and commitment to the task, Leonard Horst.

Longtime Linwood resident Horst was there to present his extensive findings on the details of his research into why the boiler plate malfunctioned along with pieces of the original boiler. He was able to get the Braendle cider boiler from Heidelberg with owner permission and relocate it near the site of the explosion. He brought along apple cider, apple butter and cheese to complement the event. His speech included the details he managed to find out about the event, and why it remains pertinent to the lives of his descendants.

"I don't know what else to say except that it has interested me," Horst said.

His work also included landscaping the area in which the plaque stands. Among the crowd was Robert Huber, the great-nephew and descendant of Thomas Huber.

"I'm really pleased that everyone is here, and that it turned into a pretty nice day," said Huber.

The plaque was a final project for former curator of the society Nancy Maitland, who was joined by other members to commemorate the event.

"Our group decided that putting up some historic plaques in the township would be a good use of our time and resources," said Maitland.

Thanks to the help of dedicated residents and gracious landowners, the storyboard now stands near the site of the Huber explosion and, according to Maitland, stands as a true testament to the township's need for its history.

The next project for the plaque committee may include sites of a plane crash in the township.

NOTICE OF STUDY COMPLETION

New Well Supply – Village of Tavistock

Municipal Class Environmental Assessment Study

Oxford County has completed a Municipal Class Environmental Assessment (Class EA) Study to explore potential opportunities for a new well supply to improve the security and supply of drinking water in the Village of Tavistock in the Township of East Zorra-Tavistock.

About the study

The Village of Tavistock currently receives water from three wells located at the same site in central Tavistock. This study explored opportunities for an additional well location to serve community water needs.

Two Public Consultation Centres were held that identified the preferred site for a new well on Hope Street West (see map). The preferred design concept includes a new well with decentralized (on-site) treatment and an equalization water storage tank at the rear of the property. The on-site storage configuration and site footprint will be further refined during detailed design.

Oxford County intends to start detailed design in 2024 and proceed to construction, subject to obtaining all necessary approvals and funding.

The Class EA Study was completed in accordance with the planning and design process for Schedule C projects as outlined in the Municipal Engineers Association Municipal Class Environmental Assessment Document (2000, as amended in 2007, 2011, and 2015) in effect at the time of initiating this project, which is an approved process under Ontario's Environmental Assessment Act.

Public comment period

An Environmental Study Report (ESR) summarizing the Class EA Study process and findings is available online for a 30-day comment period starting May 30, 2024. The study document is available on Oxford County's website and on Speak Up, Oxford!: www.speakup.oxfordcounty.ca/new-well-supply-tavistock.

In the event that there are outstanding concerns, a request may be made to the Ministry of the Environment, Conservation and Parks (MECP) under Section 16 of the Environmental Assessment Act requiring a higher level of study (i.e., requiring an individual/comprehensive EA approval before being able to proceed), or that conditions be imposed (e.g., require further studies), only on the grounds that the requested order may prevent, mitigate, or remedy adverse impacts on constitutionally protected Aboriginal and treaty rights.

It's the annual garage and yard sale and has been a community staple for longer than organizers can remember.

The fundraiser helps with not only church activities but many other community organizations who need help financially.

The sale is outside the church and also in the auditorium from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m., rain or shine. Come hungry for the barbecue of Herlick's sausage on a bun, hotdogs and drinks.

Embroy Senior C Highlanders hockey team wins gold in Toronto

By Gary West

Women's hockey in Canada has certainly come to the forefront over the last year with the professional women's hockey league.

Locally, women's hockey has also been causing that same kind of excitement.

It was a thrilling weekend for local women's hockey in Toronto in the middle of April.

The Embroy Senior C Highlanders hockey team took home gold at the provincial championship in double overtime with a thrilling finish to end a weekend of exciting hockey for the hardworking and talented team.

Organizers said the team consists of a few local Tavistock girls and many others with connection to the Oxford County community.

The Highlanders placed first in round-robin play, which qualified them for provincials. That round robin consisted of six teams, but started out with a total of 16 senior C teams participating in the weekend.

They finished first in their pool at the provincials, which included Orillia Hawks, Toronto Leaside Wildcats and the Bluewater Hawks.

It was a strong showing from the small metropolis of Embroy as the Highlanders competed in the quarterfinals against the Embroy 97's hockey team.

In the semifinal game, they defeated the Norfolk Hurricanes, which put them in the finals against Orillia.

According to the team's coaches, the double-overtime win was a sweet ending to a very successful year.

In a press release, the team thanked "the tremendous coaching staff," team captain and coordinator Megan Veldman, ice scheduler Shawna McIntosh, and the many local fans who supported the team during the provincials, and also enduring the home ice time of 9:30 p.m. on Fridays during the whole season.

Take a Hike Oxford returns this weekend

By Lee Griffi, Local Journalism Initiative reporter

June 1 is International Trails Day and the Oxford County Trails Council is inviting the community to participate in Take a Hike Oxford.

The event will take place on four trails across the county where people can learn more about the county's network of trails and participate in a wide variety of activities designed to bring nature and the shared responsibility to protect it, deeper into people's lives.

Council board member Cher Sprague said the day will feature much more than just walking trails for participants.

"We've organized various activities on each trail. The Hickson one has raptors, Ingersoll a photography walk, Beachville features a guided hike and creating fishing lures while the trail in Woodstock has face painting. Each trail will have other children's activities as well."

Sprague added the event is meant to encourage families to get out and enjoy the outdoors and experts will be available to provide tips on taking pictures in nature.

The four locations are:

- Woodstock - Herbert Milnes Park Woodlot Trail, 545239 Pattullo Avenue
- Ingersoll - John Lawson Trail, Wonham St. South (by the river)
- Hickson - Hickson Trail North, 99 Loveys Street (Hickson Park)
- Beachville - Oxford Thames River Trail, 454779 45th Line (east of Beachville)

"People can come to learn more about our wonderful trails network and participate in a wide variety of activities designed to bring nature and our shared responsibility to protect it deeper into our lives," said council president Dan Molinaro.

"Combining knowledge and physical and mental health is vital to our wellbeing and we recognize this starts from an early age and can last a lifetime. So, the activities at our four public sites will feature fun for kids and parents while catering to those who wish to explore each trail with or without a guide, and perhaps capture their experiences with their camera or other mobile device," he added.

The group has teamed up with several partners to allow up-close, personal and hands-on experiences to encourage a broader understanding of local nature, the environment and the many local resources available.

Each location will be open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., rain or shine, and will feature sanitation and hydration facilities. Bring your own water bottle, snacks, bug spray, sunscreen and outdoor footwear. Free parking will be available.

The Oxford County Trails Council is a reference committee and, if a group is interested in creating a trail, it will provide assistance.

"We provide interested groups with the people to contact and help them get organized. We've assisted various new trails like Harrington which goes around the pond, and the Thames River Trail which brought together organizations like Ducks Unlimited and Stewardship Oxford. It was a large coordination effort," said Sprague.

Jackie Noble Memorial Trophy awarded to local music students

By Gary West

Music students from various grades at North Easthope Public School west of Amulree brought home the hardware to the school after the recent 96th annual Kiwanis Festival of the Performing Arts in Stratford.

Music teacher Colleen Rothwell said the school entered four choirs into the festival, including a girls choir and three classroom choirs – grades 1, 2 and 3/4.

According to Rothwell, the dedication and focus of each student was evident at the competition and their hard work resulted in first-place standings for each group.

Additionally, the girls choir was awarded the Jackie Noble Memorial trophy in memory of Jacqueline Candice Noble of St. Marys who died in 1989 of Leukaemia at the age of 14. She was a talented singer and brought joy to her family, friends and to all who knew her.

At the Stars of the Festival evening, North Easthope was presented with two more awards, including the Ida Kollman Memorial Scholarship and the Bottomley Trophy for the highest average score in three or more Elementary School vocal classes.

The winning singers from North Easthope thanked Mitchell area farmer Dave Murray as their dedicated accompanist during this year's festival.

Rothwell also sends out many thanks to the school's parent council, which supported this effort by providing funding for entrance fees and busing.

Hickson and District Lions Club makes a major donation to East Zorra-Tavistock

By Gary West

It was a big day for the Hickson and District Lions club on May 15 as the club honoured its commitment of $10,000 to the township of East Zorra-Tavistock.

The money had been given to the club as part of the prizes awarded from the Van Boekel family, when they won Pioneer Seeds' "Here's to our Hometown" video competition in 2019.

At that time, the club had said they would use the funds to build a community/meeting room.

The club had also approached the township at the same time with a plan to enclose a larger part of the pavilion for a meeting room. The cost of this proposed project was too large for the club to go it alone, so it asked the township for some help.

The Lions were told of plans to include a room as part of the new township administration building.

The club has used the new community room for their business meetings since January 2024.

Humane Society of Kitchener-Waterloo and Stratford-Perth

By Alex Hunt

The local humane society prioritizes providing our furry friends their forever home.

Humane Society of Kitchener Waterloo and Stratford Perth will host their Adopt-a-Thon at their Stratford and Kitchener locations on June 1 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at both centres.

"The majority of the animals are strays. There might be a few that have been surrendered with owners trying to re-home them, so we have taken them in to help them out but the majority that we have on site here are strays," said Nicole Swartzentruber, animal-care manager at the Stratford Perth Humane Society.

Swartzentruber says most of these animals have been at the facility for around three to four months and are classified as long-term-care residents, while others have only been in care for a couple of weeks.

"Things have slowed right down. People are just not adopting these animals. They are with us longer than we would like to see," said Swartzentruber. "I think the economy has a lot to do with it. The cost of living has increased. People are just not able to take on the responsibility of another mouth to feed and owning an animal is not cheap."

Swartzentruber says the centres care for 170 animals with 51 of them available for adoption at the Adopt-a-Thon. Thirty-five animals will be available for adoption in Kitchener-Waterloo and 16 in Stratford Perth.

All online-adoption applications will be suspended and replaced with paper copies on site in both facilities.

Swartzentruber said overpopulation has been a prominent issue due to slow adoption rates and hopes that all animals will be brought to their new homes on the day of the event so more can be admitted and cared for.

On event day, cats and other small animals such as rabbits and guinea pigs will be displayed in the atrium, visible for all visitors.

"Because we have so many dogs available for adoptions, they do not all sit in our canine adoption area and we generally do not let the public go back there because it is very stressful on the animals," said Swartzentruber.

"We will have pictures of all the dogs and if somebody would like to meet a dog, all they have to do is fill out an application and one of our adoption counselors will bring the dog out to meet them and every member of the household must be present to adopt the dog."

Swartzentruber said if a visitor has a dog and is interested in adopting another, then they must bring their dog with them to ensure both canines are compatible.

"We are not giving up," said Swartzentruber. "We will continue to promote these animals online and continue to have these Adopt-a-Thons until they find their forever home."

EXPERT ADVICE: Condo living in today's real-estate landscape

By Isabel Livingston

In today's growing economy and real estate market, condominiums have become a sought-after option for home ownership, captivating buyers with the ease of living, comfort and amenities they provide.

As a realtor, I have not only been exposed to the growing appeal of condos, but also the unique financial structure that they offer. Today, I aim to empower you with the knowledge required to confidently grasp this unique home ownership option and make an informed decision when choosing to buy a condo.

Condo ownership can serve as a tangible asset to an individual's financial portfolio and act as a valuable investment for future goals. Like any Real Estate investment, condos have historically shown a steady appreciation over time. Locality, rising market demand and property upgrades should all be considered in order to gain the most equity for purchasers over time.

When considering condo ownership, prospective buyers often question the concept of condo fees. Why would I pay a fee for something I can do myself? Condominium living provides a unique lifestyle, with lower maintenance at the cost of a monthly condo fee. Oftentimes condominiums may include additional amenities that otherwise owners may not be able to afford. The monthly fee fronts a share of the costs for maintenance, repairs and insurance of the building and shared amenities. While this may seem like a financial burden, this fee provides peace of mind and less time spent ensuring that essential services and upkeep are taken care of. When purchasing a condo, the corporation's reserve fund must be closely examined. A reserve fund acts as a safety net for anticipated repairs and maintenance that the building will require over time.

There are certain indicators to look for when reviewing the corporation's financials that can signal to purchasers whether or not the building is a good investment. Despite best efforts of maintaining a healthy reserve fund, buyers should be aware of potential unforeseen expenses that can result in necessitating special assessment. When damage or repair costs exceed the amount of money that is in the reserve fund, corporations will sometimes bill the owners directly in a one-time payment. Although a special assessment may come as an unwelcome surprise to residents, the event is vital to maintain the viability and structural integrity of the complex.

Practice your due diligence as a buyer and inquire about recent or upcoming special assessments to gauge the financial structure of the building and corporation. Beyond the unique financial structuring and practical advantages, condos foster a unique opportunity and lifestyle that is often lacking with other ownership forms.

From a sense of community to connecting with fellow residents in communal areas and bonding over similar interests and hobbies throughout the building, condos offer a compelling pathway to homeownership for those ready to embark on the journey of home ownership or real estate investment.

EXPERT ADVICE: Our propensity to compare

By John Dinner

In taking over the writing of this column, I'm aware that a whole series over many years has preceded my taking on the writing of this monthly article. These have been written with a focus and style that have drawn readers in and created an audience who has appreciated my predecessor and the perspectives he has shared.

This change in authors reminds me of the propensity for many of us to compare ourselves with others. It's easy to self-assess my approach relative to my forerunner, Chip Bender. And, in doing so, to question my ability to effectively and entertainingly engage, connect and be relevant.

I say many of us when it's more accurate that we all are susceptible to comparing ourselves almost daily in both profound and subtle ways.

As the area's golf courses open this spring, we'll soon be comparing our scores, our equipment, our attire and the number of games we play against other golfers. When we get to the 19th hole, the brand of beverage we order will say something about us relative to others around the table and we may then compare the putts we missed, the fairways we hit or missed and the vacations taken during the winter just past. Then, we'll head home in a car and drive to a home that we hope says something about us relative to those around us – how new, how expensive, how big. You get the point.

Comparison is the world we live in. It gets exploited by the society we inhabit. The dissatisfaction that often accompanies comparison may spur us on to fill the void or unworthiness we can feel, often with mixed or unsatisfactory results. So how might we respond?

Consider for a moment that, against incredibly low odds, each of us are here to live the lives we have been given with all of its ups and downs. It has been calculated that the odds of anyone ever being born are one in 4 trillion. And yet, here we are, each of us a miracle. But what does one in 4 trillion look like?

Imagine if there was one life preserver thrown somewhere in some ocean with exactly one turtle in all of these oceans swimming underwater somewhere. The probability that any of us came to be is the same as that turtle sticking its head out of the water and into the middle of that life preserver on one try.

What might be our response to winning this lottery of life? The choices are almost endless given that life is often wonderful yet hard at the same time. But living a life of gratitude for what we have been given and being happy for the good fortune of others is one way to short circuit the temptation to compare and find ourselves wanting. By adopting a posture of gratitude amidst life's disappointments and hardships makes this journey of life more enjoyable and the pain points a little less sharp.

So, how did I do with this first column (compared with previous articles?). A better salutation might be to simply thank you for taking the time to read my offering. I'll go with that.

John Dinner is a Registered Psychotherapist (qualifying) who works as a counsellor at Interfaith Counselling Centre in New Hamburg. During the recent solar eclipse, he found himself comparing his experience with that of others.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR:
Time for council to take action on increasing power outages

It appears to me an alarming number of power outages occur and have occurred in my approximately nine months as a resident of this community.

Having lived in rural areas in past years, I am not alien to such an issue and I understand that wind, snow, ice and human error can be factors in service interruption. I cannot attribute these causes to the many service interruptions I experience here.

Is it not past time for our council to invite this service provider to meet and explain the frequency of outages, and if there are means to harden the systems to provide a more reliable service to its customers?

This oversight, I'm sure, will be welcomed both by paying customers of the service provider and taxpayers of the community they are privileged to serve.

Sincerely,
James McMyler, Tavistock

EXPERT ADVICE: Picking sensational strawberries at Pinehill Farms

By Mercedes Kay Gold

Strawberry season has arrived and Pine Hill Berries has two roadside stands already open and selling out fast!

Mark your calendar for June 7 and meet me at Pinehill Farms. I will be sporting my sunhat, shades, SPF-30 and a supersized smile in anticipation of an afternoon of personally filling those cute, green baskets with fresh-picked berries.

Rob and Stacey Musselman, owners of Pinehill Farms, lovingly planted their first strawberry crop in 2015. Rob grew up on the family farm in Tavistock and, after marrying Stacey in 2012, the couple settled on his grandparents' farm in Pinehill. With a strong desire to farm the land and discovering strawberries suited the sandy land conditions, their adventure began.

Strawberries are synonymous with sunshine, but in reality, they are a 365-day labor of love requiring constant attention. During the coldest winter months when the rest of us hibernate, the Musselman's are protecting the plants with straw. As the snow melts, planting begins. Summer-time is all about keeping a watchful eye on insects dining on the sweet nectar of the lovely white flowers.

The stunning strawberry is a flowering plant with over 20 species belonging to the rose family. The garden strawberry is a hybrid species of the genus Fragaria and each variety is unique. They vary in size, flavour, texture, sweetness and each favour different growing conditions. Pinehill Farms listened to their clients' personal preferences and grows three varieties.

Pinehill is proud to have seven acres of sensational strawberries ready to harvest this season, and another three acres of transplants for 2025. With the warm spell in March, an early harvest seemed inevitable. Wendy and Annapolis are ready first, followed by Brunswick, Cavendish, Evelyn, Kate and Valley Sunset, a "real crowd pleaser," according to Stacey.

Aside from Strawberries being beautiful and juicy sweet with a scintillating scent, they are a bounty of body boosting benefits. It's hard to fathom this mouthwatering fruit contains less than one teaspoon of sugar in a whole cup. The carbohydrates are super low thanks to fantastic fiber, fabulous for keto-diet lovers. This juicy jewel-coloured berry is first class for controlling blood sugar, scoring 40 on the glycemic index, and therefore considered a safe fruit option for diabetics. With approximately 60 calories a cup, they are an awesome add-on to any meal. Strawberries are a hydrating helper. Their 91 per-cent content is a water-intake wow! Say so long to summer colds with immune boosting benefits of chart-topping vitamin C content. Like all fruit or Mother Nature's candy, strawberries contain various vital vitamins and mega minerals, but the array of antioxidants is absolutely amazing. The ravishing red color comes from high concentrations of anthocyanin, helping reduce inflammation, offer cancer protection and heart disease for starters. Carotenoids are also key to the intense hue are fat-soluble pigments naturally present in plants and powerful for disease prevention overall.

Strawberries are stupendous! Ready set and pick your own for $3.25 per pound. Pinehill Farm's fabulous team is ready to point you to the perfect patch for hand-picking-holistic heaven.

Take a country drive and stock up on a one-litre basket for $6 or a family sized six-litre flat for $32. There are two roadside-stand locations. One is on Pinehill Farms, located at 2662 Huron Road in New Hamburg. Alternately, visit the roadside stand at the Punkeydoodles Corner located at 3880 Perth Road 101, New Hamburg. Follow on socials @pinehillfarms for upcoming hay rides and bouncing good times in the castle.

OH, THE PLACES WE'LL GO: Robbie's – an unusual, eclectic destination, and mind your fingers.

By Paul Knowles

If I were to try to describe Robbie's of Islamorada in one or two words, I would give up. Because Robbie's is one of the most unusual, eclectic destinations anywhere, it's impossible to sum up with a single adjective.

At this popular spot in the Florida Keys, you can dine on pub food right by the docks or inside the Hungry Tarpon surrounded by hundreds of fluttering American one-dollar bills that adorn the ceiling, walls and occasional posts.

You can feed tarpon by hand, an activity more fraught with peril than you might expect given the number of people who eagerly hold out bait fish for these giant game fish to grab. From time to time, they also grab a hand – or forearm (they have very large mouths). No one has lost body parts that I know of, but I also know firsthand how poor tarpon are at discerning between bait fish and the skin on one's arm. It is, shall we say, an adventure.

And adventure is what Robbie's is all about – that and perhaps beer and tacky tourist items. At this destination, right on the Overseas Highway, you can rent jet skis, kayaks and paddleboards. Robbie's is on Florida Bay on the Gulf of Mexico side of the Keys, but just on the other side of the Lignumvitae Channel Bridge – one of many that link the islands of the Keys – is the Atlantic Ocean.

That's where the newest Robbie's adventure will take you – the Transparensa glass-bottom boat.

The 46-foot Transparensa sails during the day, and also at night, to offer a unique view of the ocean floor lit by under-boat LED lights. The crew told us the creatures you see after dark are very different than those during the day. Apparently, they spoke the truth – we spotted sea turtles, nurse sharks, lobster, as well as yellow snapper and other fish.

The trip takes you to part of the coral reef that runs the length of the keys off the Atlantic Coast, so day trips are likely to treat those on the boat to the brightly coloured fish that populate the reefs but hide from predators at night.

Either option will be an intriguing experience, but one piece of advice: pray for a calm day or evening. Wind and waves can significantly lessen one's enjoyment of a glass-bottom boat, which rolls with the waves as it hovers over the sea bottom. This, even though the Transparensa is fitted with state-of-the-art stability equipment.

If you want to get even more up close and personal with the denizens of the coral reefs, Robbie's offers snorkeling and "SNUBA" diving. The latter is a combination of snorkeling and SCUBA. Divers don't wear breathing equipment. Instead, they are connected to an air supply that remains in the boat. SNUBA divers can descend to about 20 feet below the surface.

Robbie's also has sunset cruises on a catamaran – a popular feature everywhere in the Keys – and eco-tours through the islands of Florida Bay, which borders on the southern end of the Everglades.

But come back to Robbie's on land for a moment. As well as the restaurant, there's a gift shop and other kiosks, a beach bar and about two dozen potential selfie spots where visitors pose with statues of pirates, giant replicas of tarpon, fluttering dollar bills or the ever-present pelicans, egrets and herons.

The pelicans, by the way, are eager to compete with the tarpon for the fish being offered by the would-be tarpon feeders. This inevitably leads to ambushes by the birds on the folks focused on the fish. All of this is genuine entertainment in its own right. I could watch this drama for hours.

That's the thing about Robbie's. It's clearly a place that does not take itself very seriously, embraces its inner tackiness and welcomes all and sundry to do whatever they might enjoy doing on a given day.

By the way, there is a lot more to do in Islamorada in addition to the eclectic mix of activities at Robbie's. The Morada Way Arts and Culture District is worth an article of its own – so I will provide one to you a few weeks from now.

And as is true all the way down the Keys, from Key Largo to Key West, there are lots of places to stay. This time around, we booked into the Hadley Resort and Marina and found it to be delightful. Our apartment had a balcony overlooking the re-sort's docks and beyond them, the Atlantic Ocean. There was a welcoming pool, free ice cream on offer all the time and a significant number of shy lizards roaming the property. It was a great place to stay, and I'd recommend it as your headquarters as you explore this fascinating part of the Florida Keys.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR: Wilmot is not a willing host for 770-acre land assembly

This evening, I was part of a rally at the Wilmot Township offices where several residents of the community managed to speak with Mayor Salonen and some of the councillors to let them know that Wilmot is not a willing community regarding the plan to assemble 770 acres of prime farmland for the purpose of industrial development. Recently, Premier Ford indicated that land assembly plans should only proceed with willing communities.

Later in the council meeting, a motion was put forth about Wilmot Township needing to establish rules to prevent dumping of contaminated fill. When Stewart Snyder, a farmer affected by the land grab, tried to equate the disastrous consequences of uncontrolled dumping with those of destroying prime farmland in favour of an industrial complex, he was prevented from continuing. When he asked how he could arrange to speak with the council on this subject, he was told to contact the Region.

I find it very upsetting that the premier leads us to believe that communities have say in how their land is managed and yet, when the community is not willing to agree with a proposed plan, their elected leaders do not stand up for them. Isn't it their responsibility to advocate for their constituents not to pass the buck?

Oxford Tourism award winners announced

By Lee Griffi, Local Journalism Initiative reporter

Oxford's tourism innovators and collaborators were on hand last Thursday night at Otter Creek Golf Club for the third annual Oxford Tourism Awards of Excellence.

Presented as part of Rural Oxford Economic Development Corporation's 10th Anniversary Banquet and Awards Event on May 23, the 2023 Oxford Tourism Awards of Excellence winners were announced.

Responsible Tourism Award - Golspie Dairy

Golspie Dairy has carried a sustainable mindset for its business since day one of operations. Golspie Dairy sourced local materials, including fallen ash trees, for use in the aging room. It increased biodiversity on the farm by planting a native-species meadow and incorporating consumer education. Golspie Dairy's refill program for milk and soft cheeses has reduced plastic consumption for its customers. In addition, it has ensured its building is accessible and inclusive and has supported cycling tourism, installing bike racks and seating.

Tourism Partnership Award first recipient - SixThirtyNine, Thames River Melons and Canada Grills

Local restaurant SixThirtyNine recently teamed up with Thames River Melons and Canada Grills for the highly successful Farm to Dinner Table event. The sold-out event enhanced the tourism sector and profile of Oxford County, celebrating the many Oxford County and Ontario producers featured on the menu. This event included visitors from Toronto and travel media. SixThirtyNine, Thames River Melons and Canada Grills plan to continue working together by offering new and exciting experiences in 2024 and beyond.

Tourism Partnership Award second recipient - Indigo Lounge Wellness and Eatery

The "It Takes a Village" mantra has always been at the root of everything they do at Indigo Lounge Wellness and Eatery in Tillsonburg. Indigo Lounge's mission statement focuses on collaboration and partnerships, and it is always looking to make new local partners. Throughout the year, it hosted dinners and cooking classes with Cool Convenience, Sizzling African Cuisine, Punjabi Chef Jasjit Kaur and Nigerian Chef Khadjiah Haliru. It also partners with farmers for farm-to-table dinners. Partnership goes beyond the kitchen, including Bollywood dance and Henna nights with Sahar Zaidi, and special events with Oxford County Pride. It even offers up space every Sunday for a new restaurant start-up, Sizzling African Cuisine.

Best New Tourism Product Award - Orange Door Acres

Orange Door Acres started as a small, farmgate operation for people to buy pasture-raised chicken. Over the years, the business began to take flight by expanding with innovations, recently completing a major expansion by adding a kitchen allowing it to expand products offered to visitors. Visitors are always welcome to tour the Orange Door Acres farm, as farm education is an essential aspect of the business. The onsite processing allows visitors to see firsthand how food from the garden, strawberry patch and barn winds up on the table. This investment has created new employment opportunities and allowed more people to discover Orange Door Acres.

"We had some incredible submissions once again this year, and it gets harder and harder every year we host these awards for our panel of judges to select a winner" said Meredith Maywood, Oxford county tourism specialist. "We have so many businesses in Oxford County going above and beyond to support local tourism and keep guests coming back to the county.

"I'm pleased that the Tourism Award provides a forum to recognize their efforts and amplify their successes."

The 2023 Oxford Tourism Award program recognizes the region's tourism businesses, organizations and individuals who have displayed excellence in product development, partnerships and collaborations, innovation, inclusiveness, leadership, sustainability and attraction to the region. The program also recognizes partners who work collaboratively with Tourism Oxford to grow regional tourism and offer exceptional visitor experiences.

Winners were chosen by a panel of external judges with representatives from Ontario's Southwest, the Tourism Industry Association of Ontario and the Culinary Tourism Alliance.
